According to the National Association of Advertisers, on premises signage costs much less per impression than any other form of advertising. In general, surveys have shown on-site signage typically increases foot traffic between 20-50%, compared to 2% for radio advertising, 5% for television, and 8% for newspaper advertising. The great value derives from the one time expenditure that continues to provide advertising value for years to come. You pay for signage once, and it continues to generate impressions over the life of the sign. Other advertising requires additional payments everytime you want new impressions.
